VOTE!

Vote on Election Day, Tuesday, November 4.

Vote as you please—but vote! The suffrage is not your inheritance, God-given right. The suffrage is a privilege given you by your country, the United States of America, the richest, the most powerful, the freest nation of earth and of all lands the most desirable. It is a privilege that carries with it the responsibility of the good American citizen to carry on the work of the patriots who gave us the Declaration of Independence.

Abraham Lincoln, fifty-nine years ago, asked for renewed vows of fealty to "that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth." How shall that government live—if the people do not vote?

"Don't be a slacker—in this duty of citizenship." Vote—or shut up!

PARAGRAPHS FOR THE NEW ENGLANDER

News of General Interest From the Six States

The University of Maine will ask the Legislature for $1,700,000 this winter, President Little announced.

Black Hand warnings that he get out of Swansea or be killed were followed by the dynamiting of the room in which Rudolph Deschamps of New Bedford had slept until a week ago, on the farm of Fred Wallace.

Cost of living in Massachusetts for September increased about 1.3 per cent over the previous month, according to the monthly cost of living index made public by the special state commission in the necessary of life. The largest increase for the month was in the food index. Clothing, fuel and light showed slight increases as compared with August.

Mrs. Julia E. Towle, who spent 45 years as a missionary among the Indians of the Pacific northwest, died in New Bedford, aged 87 years. Mrs. Towle went into missionary work in New York, but in 1884 she went out to the Unadilla Indian reservation as a missionary. She remained until 10 years ago.

Big game hunting in the northern counties of Maine began an hour after sunrise, Oct. 16. Before night the first trophies reached Bangor from the north woods—a bear, and a deer, both from the Moosehead Lake region. The bear, weighing 300 pounds was tagged to Boston; the deer, a 140 pound spikehorn, to New Bedford.

The grand jury in the United States District Court, Rutland, Vt., after 10 days sitting reported 116 true bills found and five not found. This is said by the court officers to be the largest number ever found in Vermont by any grand jury. The offenses have to do with violations of the prohibition and smuggling laws. It is said.

The same young man and woman who finished first and second in last year's international typewriting contest finished in that same order in this year's contest held in the 65th Regiment Armory, New York City. Albert T. Theroux, 14, of St. Ann's Parochial school, Fall River, Mass., won the novice competition, with a record of 85 words a minute for 15 minutes, reading from copy.

Mrs. Helena Hill Wood, daughter of the late Congressman E. J. Hill, of Norfolk, Conn., who is addressing mill workers in that section in behalf of the La Follette-Wheeler ticket, stated she expected to be a candidate for United States senator to succeed the late Frank B. Brandegee. Mrs. Wood said she would not formally announce her candidacy until after the national election.

The 115th annual meeting of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions was held at Providence. The members and attending missionaries were welcomed to the city by President William H. P. Fausch of Brown University. The principal business was the report of Foreign Secretary James L. Eaton, on conditions in the Balkan, Turkish, Chinese, Japanese and Mexican fields.

Prof. George D. Chase, dean of graduate studies at the University of Maine, has been appointed Judge of the Orono municipal court. Since then he has imposed fines on many persons, four of whom were University of Maine students, for speeding and reckless driving. The new federal highway which passes the University of Maine campus is a great temptation to the motorist who has a speedy car.

William Tyralen, 49 years old, a Gardner, Mass., laborer, fell through a glass window in the kitchen door at the home of Emil Pallas on the old Gardner road, then fell into bed with two other men, and was found dead in bed in the morning, having been accidentally smothered to death. According to Dr. D. Sidney Woodworth of Fitchburg, medical examiner, death was due also to alcoholism.

A party of surveyors from the office of the engineering department of the war department at Providence, which has been taking soundings and surveying a channel in the Connecticut River, between Hartford and Windsor Locks, left Hartford bound southwest in the small power boat they have been using in the survey. The work has been in connection with the study of a plan to make a large channel and canal between Hartford and Springfield. The result of the survey will be forwarded to Washington with a report on the findings of the Providence office.

DOING GOOD WORK

HIGH praise for the service being rendered to the nation by the American Legion is expressed by Gov. Charles A. Tompkins of Connecticut, in a recent letter to State Commander E. P. Armstrong.

After expressing his sense of the great service which the men of the Legion gave their country in time of war, Governor Tompkins proceeds:

"Your organization has done good work in the past and I am persuaded that it will continue that good work. In the direction of combating propaganda and in other patriotic directions, the American Legion is performing a great service. I trust that in every way and particularly in the matter of rendering service to your fellow men your organization will prosper."

UNIQUE MEMORIAL IN HONOR OF DEAD

A light lit up on the top of a 125-foot shaft in Madison square, says the New York World, to burn there steadily as a reminder to the living of the youth cut down on the battlefields of France, and of mothers who weighed the lives of their sons against the call to defend the nation's honor and make the sacrifice.

The "eternal light" shaft, gift of Madison Wamsucker, was taken from a century old pine in the virgin forests of Oregon. It is surrounded by a star and by a light that never will dim. A smaller eternal light to the memory of war dead burns on the grave of the unknown soldier, under the Star of Remembrance in Paris.

World War mothers and Congressmen Medal winners stood beside the low square of polished granite and others around the shaft as Mr. Wamsucker unveiled the memorial monument to the dead of the shaft. A salute to the dead reverberated from army cannon and "The Star-Spangled Banner" was played.

"We give this shaft to the city of New York in the name of those mothers who wearily, who gave us these heroes who paid the supreme sacrifice on the field of valor," Mr. Wamsucker said. "May it ever shine and be a guide to posterity in the interests of liberty and freedom."

Mayor Hylan, who made the speech of acceptance, declared he dedicated the shaft to the mothers who placed their own flesh and blood on the altar of duty, and that he further dedicated it to the cause of the American nation.

Major Gen. Robert Lee Bullard spoke in behalf of the army, and Rear Admiral Charles P. Mitchell spoke for the navy.

Adoption of Disabled Veterans in Hospitals

Adoption of disabled veterans to government hospitals in the state has been authorized by the department executive committee of the American Legion in Wisconsin. Proceeding on the theory that many such men desire to become Legionnaires but failed to do so because of financial reasons, each post will be asked to name certain men in veterans' hospital facilities as members of a post, dues to be paid from the post treasury.

"Big Brother" Movement

The "big brother" movement has received considerable impetus in Reading, Pa. since formation of such a group by the American Legion. Support of the legion, history and knowledge of the war was given the veterans in the movement. Plans of all districts there have been approved to and the legion expects to make the movement a city wide effort. This will become a regular activity of the post.

Aid for San Diego Post

When a photograph of the legion memorial to the fallen soldiers of the American Legion in San Diego and appeared recently in a local paper, the legion decided to donate the money to the post. This is a donation to aid the post in the construction of a new building.

Aid for Memorial Site

San Francisco, Cal., has been asked to donate the money to the legion memorial site in San Diego. The money will be used to aid the post in the construction of a new building.

They're a Sight

Mrs. William W. Smith, the girl who was seen in a city I once saw through them.

Memorandum: Well, indeed, I saw them in the town house, as a matter of fact, they were not there, but they were in the way in the world, there was a thing about them that I never saw before.

Aids New Building

The new building has been finished by the American Legion. The building is a fine one and it is a great credit to the legion.

THE J. E. JONES LETTER

The Bureau will be supported by public spirited citizens, and in the statement mentioned above it is indicated that it will follow closely the history of the National Civil Service Reform League. Thus the Bureau will likely become an organized movement to help correct many of the wasteful methods that have resulted in abuses in the administrative departments of the Government.

OFFICIAL JOB HUNTING

The hardest thing many people have to do is to find work. What percentage of them are in the class with the man who said "he was looking for work and praying to Heaven he couldn't find it." It is not disclosed by any survey of the unemployment situation. According to the Russell Sage Foundation the constantly unemployed in the United States ranges from one million to six million. This philanthropic organization has petitioned President Coolidge to maintain adequate systems of public employment offices and co-ordinate into an effective nation-wide service all Federal and State agencies. It is proposed that some of the members of the Cabinet shall comprise a national board and take the initiative in organizing the employment and employees of the country to the end that there shall be "a neutrality of administration" in the directing of all employment matters. On more than one occasion it has been necessary to adopt emergency measures throughout the United States to take care of the unemployed. Another factor of the situation is that private agencies do not usually handle the employment problem in the best interests of the workmen. In the future there will be at all times a means of supplying work for those who wish employment, broad-minded citizens are supporting the movement most energetically.

WASHINGTON'S NEWEST STATUE

Lead figures in his book describing the statues of the City of Washington remarked that it was not in need of any more equestrian statues—that there were enough of them. But Washington has a new equestrian statue of which, in the words of a famous writer, "it speaks." It is the statue of Methodist Bishop Francis Ashbury, who made the journey to Pennsylvania before the Declaration of Independence. It is a wonderful piece of work by an English sculptor, Augustus Lukeman, who has succeeded in creating an equestrian statue that looks like a horse. The great mass of statues throughout Washington are of our heroes of the Civil War and previous wars. Appreciation of their fighting men has been very much overdone, and this places the statue of the good Man of God in a contrast that adds to its popular approval.

THE MIDDLEMAN

The Federal Trade Commission will make an investigation into margins and profits of terminal grain middlemen. The report will make available for Western farm interests and members of Congress a detailed statement of crop conditions in the West. In this investigation as in all other inquiries the commission profits that occur between the producer and the consumer, will be the "meat and bones" that is sought.

DOLLARS AND SENSE

Intelligent application of at least the fundamental rules of scientific selling and selection becoming essential in retail store management. Changing attitude of buyers spells doom for the "hit or miss" merchant.

The careless "give 'em anything" merchant and the happy-go-lucky, "take anything" buyer of yesterday are disappearing from the avenues of modern business. Today's rapidly developing attitude of careful selection on the part of shoppers everywhere is being reflected in the need for more scientific management of stores. The successful retailer of tomorrow must substitute knowledge for guesswork in judging sales area and demand, according to the Domestic Commerce Division of the Department of Commerce in "Measuring a Retail Market," the third pamphlet in a series prepared at the suggestion of important retail organizations for the benefit of the store trade generally.

Just as the manufacturer and banker have realized the importance of research in their management problems, so may the retail merchant benefit by a study of his problems with a more analytical mind and in the light of facts scientifically gathered, the Division suggests. "Since the purpose of any retail business is to sell merchandise, thereby making sufficient profit to compensate for the labor and capital expended, it seems only logical that the merchant should desire to obtain all the information possible relative to his market."

"The chief function of the merchant is to supply the customers' demand," and the retailer can perform this service most adequately if he makes a quantitative analysis of the market and a qualitative analysis of the consumers' demands. "Such sales researches serve as guides to the possibilities of the future and are of value to the prospective merchant in choosing his field, as well as to the established merchant in pointing the way. In planning to enter a new field the retailer may find, by a careful analysis, that his prospective market does not reflect such favorable circumstances as a cursory examination appeared to reveal. He may be saved from embarking upon the enterprise, preventing subsequent failure and much loss to society of wasted effort and capital."

The campaign should be visualized in its entirety, according to a chapter devoted to "Preliminary Analysis." It is beyond the hope of anyone to know all possible facts regarding a particular market, so the only logical course for an organization desiring to try out market analysis on a small scale is to allot in advance a definite amount of time and money for the survey and then keep to the schedule as far as practicable. Commenting on the arbitrary indications of some writers that the average city should draw from an outside territory that embraces a population equal to 40 per cent of itself, the opinion is advanced that many conditions determine the extent of the city's trading territory. Of the more important factors in this respect are those geographical conditions playing their part in freeing a city from outside competition or in handicapping it in its race for trade. Merchandising extraordinarily fair and comprehensive, have enabled some cities to include in their trade territory outlying districts whose population was equal to 75 per cent of that of the original city. One can not emphasize too strongly the importance of efficient merchandising policies when an effort is being made to measure and ascertain a potential market. The utility of population statistics in retail planning is fully discussed. These are easy to obtain, and while not providing specific answers to all questions raised by retailers, nevertheless furnish a desirable background of valuable basic facts which may be used in connection with more specific information obtained by direct contact with the market.

Age and sex distribution are important, particularly to certain distributors. For example, the growing influence of children in the purchases of parents has led to the sending of appeals to the "little folks" as an effective approach. "The family purse" is a subject of increasing importance in the past of good business compared with the more careful buying by retail stores is used as evidence of the need for studying the habits of the people. Because the terms are noted as a study of the market, any store catering to trade dominated by that nationality must offer dependable, staple merchandise at reasonable prices. The Frenchman's love of dress and luxuries is well known, and so it is with practically all the other customers. "In times of strike a great financial burden has often been caused by the merchant through the extension of credit and the situation in regard to retail strikes should be of interest to any retailer who sells to laborers," the pamphlet says in the section devoted to "Aspects of Labor Situation." "Home ownership usually means permanence; it is indicative of the prosperity of the community, particularly in smaller towns and suburban districts, and is worthy of careful study." The number of farmers who own the land they till, the number who are renters, and the average size of their families are a few of the important things to look into in considering a farming community. Condition of the soil and climate, facilities for reaching the market, distance of haul, and ravages of insects influence the farmer's pocket book. Among other subjects discussed in the pamphlet in their bearing on retailing are "Diversification of Industries," "Classification of Factories," "Neighborhood Purchasing Powers," "Later Notes from Daily Living Habits," "Considerations Affecting Farmers," "Competition," and "Limiting Factors of the Markets." The data presented were gathered directly from prominent retailers all over the country. The pamphlet represents the condensed opinions of the most progressive retail agencies, and presents an approach to the solution of the problem from a new standpoint, according to the Domestic Commerce Division. The pamphlet is known as Trade Information Series No. 233. "Measuring a Market," the first in the series, was published in 1922. The pamphlet is available upon application to the Bureau of Domestic Commerce, Department of Commerce, Washington, D. C.

GET RID OF THAT BACK-ACHE!

Bethel People Point the Way

The constant aching of a bad back, the weariness, the tired feeling; Headaches, dizziness, nervousness, Distressing urinary disorders—Are often signs of failing kidneys. And too serious to be neglected. Get rid of these troubles! Use Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Hosts of people recommend Doan's. This is a Bethel case. You can verify it.

A. P. Copeland, farmer, and hay contractor, Chapman St., says: "I was so bad with backache I couldn't get straightened once I was seated. My kidneys didn't act regularly. At times the secretions passed too frequently, then again were scanty. I went to Doan's Drug Store and I got a box of Doan's Pills. I used Doan's and the ailments were corrected."

Mr. Copeland is only one of many Bethel people who have gratefully endorsed Doan's Pills. If your back aches—if your kidneys bother you, don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask distinctly for DOAN'S PILLS, the same that Mr. Copeland had—the remedy backed by home testimony. 60 cents at all dealers. # The Mystery Road

By
E. Phillips Oppenheim

Synopsis

BOOK ONE—CHAPTER I.—Fleeing from a brutal stepfather, an unhappy and a proposed husband and she goes to a country road on the verge of despair.

CHAPTER II.—Halted by an explosion, Lord Dombey and Christopher Mont, are attracted by the girl's distracted appearance. She begs them to take her away from her misery. In a spirit of adventure they do so, conveying her to Monte Carlo and leaving her with friends. Myrtle speaks English, her mother having been an educated woman.

CHAPTER III.—Gerald sees a beautiful young woman in the gambling hall and is attracted to her. He learns that she is called Pauline de Pondere and is with her aunt. He is unable to secure an introduction to her and Gerald decides Myrtle shall go back to her home. Lady Mary, Gerald's sister, is in love with Christopher, who disapproves of the young man's guardianship of Myrtle.

CHAPTER IV.—Gerald and Christopher arrange for a mutual guardianship of Myrtle.

CHAPTER V.—Lord Dombey makes the acquaintance of Pauline. He is startled by the air of mystery and concealment surrounding her.

CHAPTER VI.—Myrtle falls desperately in love with Gerald, but he is a natural dupe to only inferior women. In the end, while Christopher Mont really loves her and would marry her, she is interested in Pauline.

CHAPTER VII.—A mysterious Russian, Zabin, wins a large sum at the gambling table. Gerald, who knows the de Pondere, but can get no information from him.

CHAPTER VIII.—Christopher makes little progress in his courtship of Myrtle, who is completely infatuated with Lord Dombey and would gladly become his mistress. He really cares little for her, his interest being all in Pauline.

CHAPTER IX.—Gerald tells Pauline of Zabin's gambling. She is at once interested, and asks him to find the Russian and bring him to her and her aunt. Gerald agrees to do so, but everything else he has won and practically everything else he has lost, he has lost in the Indies Zabin takes himself.

CHAPTER X.—It is learned that Zabin was the steward of Madame de Pondere and has lost at the gaming tables 100,000 francs, all the money she and her aunt had. The two women have been left penniless. The two women have been left penniless. The two women have been left penniless.

CHAPTER XI.—Gerald is giving a birthday party to a few acquaintances at the May house. The company is not suitable for a young girl, and he refuses to allow her to attend. The company is not suitable for a young girl, and he refuses to allow her to attend. The company is not suitable for a young girl, and he refuses to allow her to attend.

CHAPTER XII.—Lady Mary offers to take Myrtle to the States and find employment. Christopher accepts the offer gladly. Myrtle goes to Gerald and tells him of her decision. He takes her away, when Gerald would have kept her in his room. Myrtle goes to England with Lady Mary.

BOOK TWO—CHAPTER I.—In London Gerald meets Pauline and her aunt, but realizes he is held at a distance. Telling Pauline of his decision to leave, she declares she cares only for one man, her brother, and he is in prison. Myrtle is living with Gerald's aunt, Lady Dombey, and Lady Mary.

CHAPTER II.—Gerald raises a large sum of money, returning to explain the reason to his father. Christopher asks Myrtle to marry him. She declines, considering her love for Gerald.

CHAPTER III.—Gerald tells Myrtle of his love for Pauline, and that he is leaving for Russia at once. Pauline tells him her brother is confined to a fortress at Bakur. Myrtle, Major Kroenow, can be bribed to allow him to see his brother in freedom. He can win Pauline, Gerald undertakes the task.

CHAPTER IV.—At Bakur, Gerald meets Myrtle. She tells her of his mission and of the money at his command. Gerald tells her that he would free the Grand Duke Paul.

CHAPTER V.—Gerald arranges that Myrtle take the place of the Grand Duke in prison, until the day of the execution of the Grand Duke. Myrtle is to be executed on the day of the execution of the Grand Duke. Myrtle is to be executed on the day of the execution of the Grand Duke.

CHAPTER VI.—Myrtle follows Gerald to the prison in France. Lady Mary allows her to go.

CHAPTER VII.—Gerald disappears to Russia to execute his plan. Myrtle and Lady Mary are given up by the Russian government. Myrtle and Lady Mary are given up by the Russian government. Myrtle and Lady Mary are given up by the Russian government.

"You Have Had a Long Journey, Lord Dombey," She Said.

him the clue to her mysterious behavior. She came toward him, however, as composed and unresponsive as ever. There was nothing whatever in her manner to indicate the fact that she was greeting the man who had risked his life in a mad enterprise for her sake.

"You have had a long journey, Lord Dombey," she said.

He bowed over the hand which she had extended to him.

"A long journey, indeed," he answered. "A journey down into hell and back."

"Sit down," she invited, "and I will give you the explanation I owe you."

"Thank you," he answered. "I do not feel at home in this house. Let me remain standing until after you have told me what it all means. I have done your bidding. I have come to beg for your reward."

Her eyes looked at him coldly. "I promised no reward," she reminded him.

"Not in words," he admitted. "Yet you know what I desire."

"What you desire is absurd," she declared. "That is what I wish to explain. You have discovered, perhaps, who I am."

"I learned who your brother was," she went on. "Listen. I am the Grand Duchess Pauline of Russia, princess and hereditary ruler of the Caspian provinces, and nearest in kin among living women to Nicholas, who was murdered by the people. The man whom you rescued is Paul, grand duke of Volostok, hereditary ruler of seventeen provinces, and nearest in the male line to the crown of Russia. He is my cousin."

"Your cousin?" Gerald exclaimed.

"And my husband," she answered calmly.

Gerald was extraordinarily cool. The situation began slowly to shape itself in his mind.

"It has been the province of royalty," Pauline continued, "to make use of their courtiers, without explanation, in whatever way may seem good to them. I have made use of you. I did not seek your acquaintance or your friendship. I have made use of you no more. I have kept you much farther away even from hope than would many of my illustrious ancestors. Yet, in these days, you will probably think that you have been ill-treated. I cannot help it. I and others of my race have been ill and mercilessly treated. You have been a small wrong. I made use of you and your devotion to free my cousin, to whom I was affianced. So far as my thanks can satisfy you, I tender them."

"You are very gracious," Gerald acknowledged, forgetting all his weariness and holding himself like a man.

"May I ask, were you married to the grand duke when I fetched him from his prison?"

"I was not," Pauline answered him. "I was married a month after his return to England, with the consent and the approval of my relatives here. Paul and I have but one hope and one desire—to live until the time when the people of Russia return to their allegiance, and to reestablish the Russian dynasty in Russia, after thorough cleansing of our children for the reason we are living here with an answer given granted by the English government. When you first met us we lived in seclusion, because already four times my life had been attempted. There are still men pledged to destroy us and our branch. Here they will not succeed. We are surrounded by faithful guards, and our lives are secure. Not until the children have and foolish who shall carry on our name will I or my husband take the slightest risk. The world may see something of us later. For the present we have only one thought."

"What is that?"

"It is complete," she replied. "You will understand that your—shall I call it admiration?—was, in a sense, an offense to me. In Monte Carlo I will admit that through sheer weariness I was perhaps a little indiscreet. The situation then seemed hopeless."

"I understand," Gerald murmured. "The grand duke, my husband, will wish to offer you some hospitality," she said, touching a bell. "Be so good as to await his coming."

Prince Paul entered the room a moment or two later, a touch of sunburn on his cheeks, erect and handsome, a very different person from the broken prisoner of a few months ago. He advanced toward Gerald with outstretched hand.

"It gives me great pleasure," he said, "to welcome you in my very bad English to our home. You see, I reached England safely. Perhaps you will give us the pleasure of your company to dinner tonight?"

Gerald shook his head.

"I have promised the owner of the car which I hired," he said, "to return it to him tonight. I must, in fact, be leaving at once."

A servant entered with a tray bearing wine and whisky. Paul served his guest himself.

"They tell me that this is the most hospitable country of the world," he observed. "Even in Russia we should not let you depart without a toast. You will wish us those things for which her highness and I live."

Gerald bowed and raised his glass to his lips.

"I shall drink to you and to your country," he said, "and to the good of both."

He set down his glass empty. Pauline smiled her goodby, but they handed him over to the care of servants with the air of royalty. Gerald drove through the opened gates, heard the bars grind behind him, and looking around for a last view, was dimly conscious of men who watched. Years afterward this strange visit, with all its trifling events, assumed its proper proportions in his mind. That night, however, he drove over the moors and around the mountains absolutely without any direct emotions. It was impossible to believe that his visit had not been the phantasm of an afternoon's slumber.

THINGS UNUSUAL
By T. T. MAXEY
(10, 322, Western Newspaper Union.)
CHICAGO'S NEW UNION STATION

When the old Union depot in Chicago was opened in the '80's wise men regarded it as a "white elephant" and criticized the railroad for building it so big. If those eyes could return and view the new one, to be opened soon, expressing utility and service in the highest terms, they would be struck dumb with amazement. This project covers 33 1-3 acres and the ground is valued at $1,000,000 per acre.

To make room for it, scores of buildings had to be wrecked; 14 viaducts, having a total length of more than two miles, were rebuilt; one street was elevated several feet and widened 20 feet for about one mile, and a tremendous amount of excavating was necessary—approximately 100,000,000 pounds of steel alone being used in this work.

The depot proper will be 320 by 370 feet and extends 20 stories above ground—the upper portion to be used as a giant office building. The waiting room will be 100 feet wide, 370 feet long, and 114 feet high—with facilities for the use of travelers arranged every of access. The portion containing the waiting, dining, ticketing, checking, and other public conveniences, and the train shed, outwardly appear to be separate buildings, but will be connected underground by the largest concourse in this country—all located on the level of the platform which will serve the passenger tracks, or 15 feet below the surrounding streets.

Trains will be dispatched from both ends of the train shed. Five roads—the Burlington route, Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne & Chicago, Pittsburgh, Chicago, Cincinnati & St. Louis—the two latter combined forming the Pennsylvania system, Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, and the Chicago & Alton—will use this station.

The longest platform will be 1,200 feet; the longest track will accommodate 16 cars and locomotives. The train shed will have a capacity of 260 passenger cars and 20 locomotives.

About 260 trains—an average of one every 34 minutes, day and night, will enter or leave it, and a maximum of 200,000 passengers can be accommodated daily in this one of the greatest depots in all the world.

It was not Pauline's secret that she was married a month after his return to England, with the consent and the approval of my relatives here. Paul and I have but one hope and one desire—to live until the time when the people of Russia return to their allegiance, and to reestablish the Russian dynasty in Russia, after thorough cleansing of our children for the reason we are living here with an answer given granted by the English government. ### PRODUCTION OF MILK SHOWS BIG INCREASE

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Milk production last year was seven billion pounds more than in 1922, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture. Production is placed at 100,738,000,000 pounds as compared with 93,738,000,000 pounds in 1922.

Consumption of milk for household purposes reached 50,440,000,000 pounds as compared with 45,072,500,000 pounds in 1922. There was manufactured 1,774,881,000 pounds of condensed and evaporated milk as compared with 1,431,319,000 pounds in 1922.

The output of creamery butter was 1,232,214,000 pounds compared with 1,153,515,000 pounds the preceding year, and the total production of cheese of all kinds was 394,007,000 pounds compared with 369,050,000 pounds in 1922.

Consumption of butter on a per capita basis was 17 pounds per person last year as compared with 16 1/2 pounds in 1922; consumption of cheese was 3.91 pounds per person compared with 3.74 pounds; condensed and evaporated milk 13.25 pounds and ice cream 2.60 gallons compared with 2.43 gallons in 1922.

Dried casein production more than doubled during the year, being 14,548,000 pounds compared with 6,927,000 pounds in 1922.

Losses making up the total milk production for the two years are given in the subjoined table:

	1922	1923
Creamery butter	1,232,214,000	1,153,515,000
Farm butter	610,000,000	638,000,000

Wheat in Dairy Rations

Is Highly Recommended

Recent low farm prices of wheat and the relatively higher price of bran and other grains and by-product feeds have produced an interest in the feeding value of wheat for live stock. As wheat is usually too valuable to feed to dairy cattle unless used for milking purposes, few dairymen have had experience in feeding it.

Ground wheat, while not as palatable as other cereal grains, due to the fact that it forms a sticky mass in the mouth, still is an excellent feed. The grain can be crushed instead of ground and, when fed in a grain mixture with bulky feeds, this objection is largely overcome.

Wheat contains practically the same amount of digestible carbohydrates, but considerably less fat than corn. Wheat is slightly richer in digestible protein, but is slightly lower in total digestible nutrients.

As compared to wheat bran, whole wheat contains less protein, but almost 25 per cent more total digestible nutrients. While bran is light and bulky, whole wheat has the opposite characteristic. Therefore, bran does not replace wheat as well as does corn.

Cows Will Produce More if Fed Much Roughage

"Better Feeding for Dairy Cows" is the title of a new bulletin by Purdue University. The bulletin says in part: Dairy cows will be better fed and will produce much more profitably if:

1. They are fed all the roughage they will eat.

2. Most of their dry roughage is made up of such legumes as alfalfa, clover, soybean or cowpea hay.

3. They are fed silage during the winter.

4. Their grain ration contains enough protein supplement to give it balance.

5. Cows are not expected to obtain too much of their feed from pasture, but are fed when pastures become poor in the summer and are taken off of pasture when it becomes poor in the fall.

Cows Crave for Wood

Early means that a cow is in need of a tonic or medicine. Cows will sometimes develop a habit of chewing on foreign substances like that and they are very hard to break. The habit is started sometimes by the lack of salt which causes the cow to chew on something that has a salty taste. Provide plenty of salt with a balanced ration and plenty of good drinking water and it may be that the cow will forget her habit.

Community Building

Heart Interest Counts in Establishing Home

Too many homes are built merely of wood, concrete, brick and stone when the fact of the matter is you have just a house and not a real home at all.

It is true that these concrete materials are necessary yet it is equally true that it requires more—much more than these—to build a real home.

With the wood and stone and mortar one must mix a liberal amount of careful consideration, personal planning and real heart interest, else you will have a house—not a home.

Build your home on paper first—carefully plan every room, take into consideration the years that you and your loved ones will probably occupy this home.

In the choice of the materials one must be guided by personal preference. If you finally decide that a frame construction is the type best suited to your needs, then by all means that is the kind of house you should build.

On the other hand, you decide that you prefer some other kind of material, the choice is yours, but it is well to give this angle of the home you are going to build considerable study and be absolutely sure.

Then comes the type of home or rather the style of the building you will erect. It is a good plan to go around and see the different types, thus getting a fairly good idea as to just how any particular style will look.

When you have done this and finally decided, then go over and check up on all of the details and see if there is anything you have missed or not considered. Get every detail of the new home truly fixed in your mind—then build, and you may be sure that you will not only have a house, but a home as well.—Indianapolis Star.

Money Expended on Paint Well Laid Out

Paint, says an authority, is an essential factor in sanitary conditions as well as to surface-finishing properties. Paint, when used inside and out, will protect a building, prevent deterioration and practically eliminate repair bills. Compared with the value of the property, the cost of the insurance paint gives one a slight.

"You always pay dearly for the painting you do not do," he asserts. "Unprotected surfaces quickly rot, boards split and joints become loose. Rotten buildings sooner or later need repairs, which are always expensive. From an investment standpoint, whatever you spend for painting and decorating always pays big returns. Paint and redecorate—it is the most economical thing you can do. Decorating makes new homes out of old ones."

"Property that is painted and decorated is always worth more because it looks better. From a selling standpoint, a building with a good appearance is always much more desirable than an unkempt one. You will be proud of the appearance and the ownership of your building and convinced that the outlay for painting and decorating is money well spent. If you are not satisfied with the interior of your home, redecorating should go a long way toward remedying your feeling."

Turn to Regional Planning

City planning, especially in large cities, sometimes involves tremendous expenditures. It may be described as a big job of replanning and reconstruction. It means correcting past errors, changing things to meet new and unexpected conditions.

A notable example of city planning was that undertaken in Paris in 1859 under the leadership of the emperor Napoleon III, and under the strong hand of Baron Haussmann, says Frederick A. Delano in National Municipal Review.

Regional planning, on the other hand, is planning for the future in the suburbs and the open country. This is the sort of planning that has been carried on so successfully in Europe.

Trees on Highways

The American Tree association prescribes that tree planting, especially that along roadsides, will set a new record this year. The enrollment in the association has reached 25,000, the association estimates, and every member is active either in planting new growths or in preserving old ones. The European scheme of roadside beautification might well be followed in this country, where tourists and sightseers travel in far greater numbers than in the old world. The walnut, for instance, is a valuable specimen which once was almost as common as the oak. It is a tree with a high commercial value and has few peers for beauty.—Merriden Record.

Canadian City's Boast

Western, Ont., with a population of but 4,000, has what is probably the best "White Way" of any community of its size in North America. For nearly two miles Main street is now lighted by the most modern street-lighting fixtures. These are placed 110 feet apart through the business section and 150 feet apart in the residential section. These lighting units consist of fluted iron poles with ornate translucent globes at the top, including either 350 or 400 watt electric lamps.
